

CERTILMAN BALIN
ATTORNEYS

Elder Law

At our Elder Law Practice Group, our attorneys offer expert assistance in a range of areas including Medicaid planning, special needs planning, and guardianships. We adopt a comprehensive approach to counsel our clients on asset protection tailored for their long-term healthcare needs and those under their care. Our in-depth estate knowledge and tax expertise enable us to address complex and sometimes urgent situations effectively.

In terms of Medicaid, whether for homecare or institutional care, we customize our planning to meet the unique needs of each client. We guide our clients through the intricate process of applying for Medicaid, helping them gather the necessary documentation to fulfill eligibility requirements.

We also advise on the creation and management of supplemental needs trusts and special needs trusts. These tools are designed to safeguard an individual's assets, ensuring they can supplement any government benefits they may receive without compromising their eligibility.

Additionally, we represent clients in pursuing guardianship for allegedly incapacitated persons and their family members, aiming to protect their rights and interests. This service is particularly valuable for individuals lacking advance directives, ensuring their funds and rights are securely protected.

Central to our practice is a deep commitment to understanding the unique circumstances of each family and their members. We take pride in listening carefully, crafting compassionate plans, and executing the necessary legal measures to ensure peace of mind for our clients.
